

DEATH OF A BUSH ERA

"Blood on our Hands"
Noah Breuer

The group exhibition entitled "Just How Does A Patriot Act" seeks to create a forum for conversation and debate, extending beyond the current political climate of denial, distraction, and dismissal of the public voice and will.

The Artists in the Exhibition:

The artists in this exhibition represent various ages, political, cultural and ethnic backgrounds. They are patriots in heart, mind and spirit, answering the call to inquire, investigate, analyze and create. Revealing questions, answers and solutions through their own unique process, as they contemplate and respond to the actions of this country at home and abroad.

Just how does a patriot act in a changing world?

I invite you all to ruminate on this query. To begin a discussion that extends beyond gallery walls. To take an active role in the future of this nation and the world. To not lose faith in "the power of the people" or the ability for one voice to make a profound difference.

Knowledge redefines power, use it or loose it!

"To dissent is Patriotic" - Thomas Jefferson, founding father

Participating Artists:

Lunna Menoh	Andrew Armstrong	George Herms
Roman Genn	Wayne Coe	Dan Van Clapp
Dianna Cohen	Mee Kyung Shim	John Carr
William Stone	Jason Chakravarty	Karen Fiorito
Sheila Pinkel	Rebecca Lowry	Joe Biel
Matthew Bryant	Douglas McCulloh	Robbie Conal
Noah Breuer	Nate Seubert	Ryan Broughman

Michael Garvey (spoken word/performance)

CURATOR:

Joella March is an artist and curator living and working in Los Angeles. She has exhibited her kinetic sculptures in many galleries including the Museum of Neon Art. Joella has curated group and solo exhibitions throughout Los Angeles.

LEFT: Ryan Broughman "Soldier" created from currency