Necessary Positions: An Intergenerational Conversation

Sun Aug 20, 2006

An open conversation on feminism, art, gender, and politics directed by Suzanne Lacy, sixteen artists from various generations pose questions to each other and the audience. Representing four decades of women artists, participants include Andrea Bowers, Anoka Faruquee, Mary Kelly, Emily Roysdon, Barbara Smith, Haruko Tanaka, Linda Vallejo, and others.

Informal but stimulating, these exchanges reveal the variety of ways in which women artists understand and interpret feminism through their work. The audience is integral to this dialogue and will be encouraged to participate.

In addition, Jerri Allyn will offer a brief dedication to Arlene Raven, noted feminist art historian who died this month at the age of 62. Raven was an influential figure in the women's and lesbian art movements in Los Angeles.

This program is presented in conjunction with the exhibition NOTHING IS NEUTRAL: ANDREA BOWERS
